Both sides welcomed the peace programme issued by the 26th Congress of the Soviet Communist Party on the consideration that it is the attitude of peace for the socialist countries and the practical replacement for the policy of confrontation and escalation of arming. They also stand in the face of the policy of threats adopted by the United States of America and the increasing military pressures exercised for the purpose of interfering in the internal affairs of the independent Arab countries. The PDRY and the G.D.R. stressed upon the necessity of reaching a comprehensive solution for the Middle East problem on just bases with the participation of the Palestine Liberation Organisation as an equal part in rights and regard that the realisation of just peace in the Middle East cannot be achieved except by the full and immediate Israel withdrawal from all Arab territories occupied in 1967 including the town of Jerusalem, and guarantee of the firm national rights of the Palestine Arab people and its right to determine its destiny and establish its independent national State.

Both sides declare their solidarity with the struggle of the Palestine Arab people and the Palestine liberation Organisation on the consideration that it is the sole and legitimate representative of the Palestinian people without which it is impossible to reach a just and permanent solution for the Middle East problem. They also support the proposal of the Soviet Union in connection with holding an international conference for solving the Middle East problem.
